Did Busing Work?

In the years after the Brown vs. Board of Education decision, school districts turned to busing students to achieve racial diversity. Today, sixty-five years after the Brown decision, what do research and advocates say about busing, its impact, and possible solutions for an education system in which many U.S. schools are more segregated today than they were decades ago?

#OurChallengeOurHope: High School Strategies for Postsecondary Success

In July, our #OurChallengeOurHope campaign is examining high school strategies that lead to success in postsecondary education. We’ve highlighted work-based learning strategies like the Linked Learning program, the International Baccalaureate (IB) program’s impact on Title I schools, and legislation to reduce the need for remedial coursework.

Deeper Learning Digest: The Best Way to Learn Science

Memorizing facts doesn’t lead to great scientists. Bringing experiments and projects to life, on the other hand, will not only stick with students longer but ensure they have more fun learning.

This digest highlights real-world application in science teaching, the secret to great teaching, a new podcast on sports and social-emotional development, and how to encourage students to think about how they learn.

All4Ed is Your Resource on K-12 Federal Education Laws

To keep you up to date on the latest happenings and implementation of the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) and the Strengthening Career and Technical Education for the 21st Century Act (Perkins V), All4Ed has created a series of bite-sized materials – both print and video – that provide concise but comprehensive analyses of several key areas within ESSA and Perkins V.

Most Students of Color Have White Teachers

Most public-school students are children of color, and yet most teachers are white, says Politics K-12. Requiring additional reporting on teacher diversity and hiring practices could help build public understanding of this issue explained All4Ed’s Anne Hyslop.
Diversity efforts start with recruitment, but what schools do next is critical
